

Humbox Launch - free PRS resources

January 15th 2010

The HumBox project focuses on the Humanities and is a collaboration between four Humanities Subject Centres (LLAS, English, History and Philosophical and Religious Studies), and at least twelve different institutions across the country. It is part of a wider Open Educational Resources initiative funded by the JISC (Joint Information Systems Committee) and the HEA, to showcase UK Higher Education by encouraging teachers within HE institutions to publish excellent teaching and learning resources openly on the web.

The site is currently in development for the HumBox project, but will officially launch on 26th February, 2010, at the University of Sheffield. To register for the event you can sign up here.
